EXITS AMPLE IN PETERSB'G

Satisfactory Report on Public Halls by a Special Committee Appointed to Investigate.

PLANING MILL

Large Movement in Tobacco Is Expected This Week-Spanish Peanuts Are High.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
FETERSBURG, VA., Jan. 23.—The committee recently appointed to examine into the condition of the public halls in this city report that they find the Academy of Music has unusually ample exits, but that the main vestibule is reduced to two-thirds its capacity by the box entrance covering the center doorway. They found the Young Men's Christian Association, Library Hall and Ramsdell's Hall with sufficient exits to empty the halls rapidly.

Idly.

If the present favorable season continues there will probably be a large quantity of tobacco brought to Petersburg next week. The farmers have been rying in many cases to make seasons, with the result that most of the tobacco brought to this city thus far is in unsuitable order, either too wet or too dry. Most of the tobacco received thus far is nondescript and common grades. Very good prices have prevailed, considering the grades.

SPANISH PEANUTS.

The Spanish peanut market continues lirmer than it has for many years. They are above the dollar mark, and the domand is large. It is estimated that three-fourths of the crop has left the hands of the farmers, and at beast half has already gone to the consumers. The sale of 25,000 bags in North Carolina this week leaves only about 15,000 bags in that State. No large sales have been made in Petersburg sinco the sale of 12,000 bags last week. Those well informed as to the situation believe that peanuts this year will go to $1.25, and the farmers who have not already sold will doubtless hold their crops till there is evidence that a decline will come.

NEW PLANING MILL.

Mr. W. J. Jones will begin next week.

NEW PLANING MILL.

Mr. W. J. Jones will begin next week the building of a new planing mill in this city on the site occupied by the Petersburg Wood Supply Company prior to the recent destruction of their plant by fire. Mr. Jones will add a box making department to the mill later in the year.

The Petersburg Wood Supply Company have nearly completed their large two-story building in Pocahontas, opposite the old Atlantic Coast Line depot. The plant will be equipped with modern machinery and many labor-saving improvements made. The former plant had a capacity of 25,000 barrel heads per day, and the new plant will have a much greater capacity than this, and will not require as many workmen.

known that witnesses were summoned into the room, and there remained for from ten minutes to half an hour or more each, but just what their testimony was designed to establish is wholly unknown, further than the infeernce that it was to sustain certain charges or reflections upon Po'Ceeman Wyatt, made by his superior officer, Major Howard. It was known, even if it had not been admitted, that these witnesses were summoned at the instance of Major Howard, and it is inferred that he hoped by them to establish the truth of certain rumors against Wyatt.

had attended a meeting of the board on a specified occasion as counsel for a man in an investigation was denied by Mr. Welsh, of the board, who stated that Mr. Smith had been present then as a speciator only. Mr. Smith states that he was permitted to sit beside his client, and did prompt him when he deemed necessary. However that may be, Mr. Meredith had to amuse himself in the ante-room while the board was sitting. He further stated, in answer to finquiries, that no copy of written charges or specifications of oral charges had even been served on him nor upon his client. He had no recourse and no appent from the board's decision as to admitting counsel, he said. Their authority was absolute.

of witnesses introduced. Several members of the board when specifically asked to do so, politicly declined, saying they had been instructed not to talk. Everything would be given out, including a full stenographic report, the members said, after the conclusion of the inquiry, investigation, prosecution or whatover else the proceedings may be properly styled. Not having any of the testimony it is impossible to state in what entegory yesterday's meeting may be classed. In the ante-room outside, Justice Crutchfield, a witness, and several well known lawyers and others dropped in and chatted. The disvestigation giving on behind the guarded door was laughingly referred to, and was generally commented upon as a star chamber proceeding, a farce, or otherwise criticised, seriously or humorously.

Some of the Witnesses.

After this very interesting procedure had been in progress for five hours and fifteen minutes and some odd seconds, fifteen minutes and some odd seconds, the last witness came out, the board deliberated a few moments longer and then the doors were opened and the ocupants of the guarded room began duning overcoats and preparing for departure. The secret hearing was over for the day and for the week. That is all that is known officially, save the names of the witnesses which were of some of the witnesses which were heard by the reporters, but as these would not be verified by the board or its employes, the accuracy of the names as caught by the reporters cannot be absolutely guaranteed.

It may be of interest to know the mames of the witnesses or of as many as were caught by the reporters from Mr. Pollock's call. Two of the witnesses frankly stated after leaving the room just what the nature of their testimony was. These were Police Custice J. J. Crutchfield and Police Captain Shinherger, one of the best and most popular men on the force, who has recently been made Inspector of Police. There were fourteen or fifteen witnesses, but the names of at least two were missed, and none of those in the ante-room knew them. These two were negroes.

The names of the witnesses, as far as they could be ascertained, were, in the order of being called, as follows: Marshall Boyle, Police Officer C. J. Folkes, II. Coles Jordan, two negroes, names unknown; Harrison Bundy and Tom Palmer, both negroes and commonly known as "police spotters;" James Bahen, Jr. Christian Bobb, J. B. Marrow and B. H. Lang, all three white; Theo. Weston, a negro, said to keep a bar in Jackson Ward; Police Captain Shinberger and Powers of the witnesses.

Long-Drawn-Out Session.

The board met at 3 P. M., but one or two of the commissioners were a trifle late. Commissioner Manning, one of the more corpulent members, came in last, puffing and blowing. Officer Wiltshire was at the outer door, opening into the corridor, and with orders to let in only those who were witnesses. After a while this vigilance was relaxed, and reporters and lawers and a few others came in and brightened the tedium of waiting for those compelled to submit to it. Justice Crutchfield entertained the audience in the ante-room by his clever hits at reporters and policemen and lawyers. When Attorney Harry M. Hon. Charles V. Meredith, one of the bost known attorneys in Virginia, was present as counsel for Wyatt, but was excluded from the chamber, and had to content himself with the weary wait in the ante-room with the reporters and others who dropped in. Mr. Meredith stated that in the very beginning of the meeting, before the board had taken up the case, he applied for admission as counsel for Wyatt. He was shown a resolution of the board, declining to admit attorneys at an investigation of the conduct of officers. The statement made by Mr. Meredith that Mr. H. M. Mr. Meredith was asked whether he had been served with a copy of the charges and specifications, and replied in the negative. Asked if this was not unusual, he said that it was the action of the board. Being asked what further action, if any, he proposed to take, he asked what else he could do. There was no appeal from the board's decision, he said, and nothing to do but accept it. Mr. Wyatt he said, would remain in the room during the examination of witnesses. The reporter next asked Mr. Meredith what recourse or remedy was available to him and his client. There was none, so far as he knew. The power of the board was absolute.

When inquiry was made whether in the event of Wyatt's being found guilty of the unknown charges, reflecting upon his character, he had any appeal or remedy at law, Mr. Meredith said he knew

This testimony, it is presumed, is designed to show that Mr. Wyatt made a false or misleading statement.

Officer Wyatt will summon his witnesses and prepare his defense during the week. Next Friday afternoon he will offer testimony as to his reputation for truth, veracity and reliability, his record as a man and as an officer. Just how many witnesses he will have is not stated, but it is understood there will be many, and among them some prominent citizens in various vocations.

The full board was present at yesterday's meeting, as follows: Joseph B. Welsh, George Ainslie, ..ris Manning, Jr., A. D. Landerkin, D. F. McCarthy, Thomas Whittet, W. M. Myers and Mayor Richard M. # ONLY SOLDIERS

Speaker Ryan Raises a Nice Question as to Filling of Vacancies.

Speaker John F. Ryan, of the House of Delegates, has called attention to a peculiar state of affairs which would arise over the filling of vacancies in the present General Assembly, should any of the members die or resign before the expiration of the present regular session. Section 21 of the Constitution provides that "unless exempted by section 22, shall as a prerequisite to the right to vote, after the first day of January, 1901, personally pay at least six months prior to the election, all State poil taxes assessed or assessable against him under this Constitution, during the three years next preceding that in which he offers to vote, &c., &c."

Section 22, referred to above, exempts soldiers of the State, United States and the Confederate State, and Speaker Ryan's contention is that only those exempted under this section could vote at an election held between now and the first of May, 1904. His contention is, and in it he is borne out by strong lawyers, that people grapty pay their taxes prior Speaker John F. Ryan, of the House in it he is borne out by strong lawyers, that people rarely pay their taxes prior to November 1st, and those paying them even on that day would not bring them-selves within section 21, unless the election should be held as late as May 1st and on that date the Legislature would have adjourned. Some member remark-ed yesterday that should a vacancy occur during the session, his successor would almost certainly be a Confederate soldier, as such a candidate usually got all the votes of his old comrades.

In the death of Dr. William H. Hening

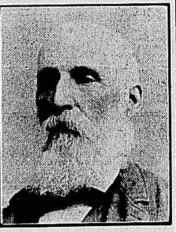

In the death of Dr. William H. Hening, Powhatan county and the State at large loses a man who was respected and loved by a large circle, and who was a unique figure in politics in that section. He was seventy-four years old on last Sunday, and for more than half a century was in active practice.

The funeral will be from the home, Carlisle, Powhatan county, at 1 o'clock this afternoon, and the interment will be in the family burying ground.

Dr. Hening was a scion of a famous family. His antecedents were public people, and were prominent in everything that tended to the good of the county and the State, which they so fondly loved. His father was a physician, and his grandfather a lawyer of note, and author of several law books, notably "Henings Statutes," "Hening's Justlee," "Hening and Munford's Reports," and other books of reference.

It was the man to him always. No matter whether the candidate for office were a Republican or Democrat, a Readjuster or a Coalitionist, if he was a good man all of the doctor's energy was used toward his election.

He was known to have been identified in this way with more than one political party. But so honest and sincere was he that he lost no friends, oven though the worked hard to dorest personal friends.

Dr. Hening was chosen superintendent

The news of the death at his residence in King and Queen county of Colonel J. Calvin Councill will strike asdness to the hearts of his many friends and former pupils in this city. Colonel Councill was a native of Virginia, and most of his life was spent in King and Queen county. In 1859 and 1860 he started a most flourishing school near St. Stephens, Va., but the war breaking out at that time, he organized a company in the neighborhood and entered the army, where he soon rose to the rank of lieutenant-colonel of the Twenty-sixth Virginia Infantry. In the last year of the war he was made prisoner at Petersburg and kept in confinement until the close of hostilities. He then reopened his school, which, as Aberdeen Academy, was widely and most favorably known. A few years since his feeble health and advanced age compelled his retirement from active duty.

The interment was made privately, in the presence of the relatives and a few intimate friends. The funeral services were held in the afternoon at 4 o'clock in St. Paul's Episcopal Church. The church was filled to its utmost with those who gathered to pay a final tribute to the memory of the decased. The simple and beautiful, but sad, Episcopal burial service was rendered. The floral offerings were in great number. The following gentlemen acted as pall-bearers:

Messrs, R. Lancaster Williams, F. L.
Bemiss, Arthur B. Carke, Blakeley Carter, H. R. Wayt, C. B. Antrim, H. E.
Baskerville and E. G. Willis.

Samuel W. Clay.

In all his long and trying illness, no murmur, no word of complaint escaped his lips, grateful for every attention shown him, bright and cheerful in all his illness to the last, always mindful of the comfort of those who waited on him.

In all my acquaintance, I have never known a more exemplary life, quiet, unassuming, and in disposition as gentle as a woman, a faithful and devoted son, and affectionate and loving brother, a true and staunch friend.

His friends he numbered by the score and held them as with "hooks of steel."

Playmate of my childhood, companion of my youth, friend of my manhood, I lay this simple tribute of affection upon thy early tomb. The memory of thy noble life, thy remoghance each shell
